I have a weird issue on startup. I've got a new HP S/390 machine. It has four onboard SATA ports. When I plug in an external SATA drive, it is found. I do a diskpart then fdisk /p to partition it. Then I do chsk and I find that the Disk0: or whatever was auto-named the disk (and was NTFS) has been set as not OK. The "Disk Information" window in Disk Management says 'OK' and also says 'Access Denied'. Anybody know what the issue might be? @tomreyn Roey: i'm not familiar with the HPs, maybe others are, but it may be some additional bios/uefi settings are not available. inad922: right, thanks for providing the details. tomreyn: I see. However I can edit the partition table and the settings for 'OK' and 'Access Denied' so it seems the hardware recognizes that partition, it just can't write to it. tomreyn: I guess what I want to know is why is that partition not recognized (again I do a chsk and it says OK) yet the hardware is able to access it fine. I don't see why the partition table would affect this. tomreyn: I can only see this issue if the drive isn't already on the machine when I plug it in. @tomreyn Roey: maybe we should gather more information first. are you booting the S/390 operating system from the s390 sdx? and how? *if tomreyn: yes. I'm booted from a USB stick tomreyn: is there a support link or something? I didn't think to check... Tom-Sawyer, tomreyn Roey: you probably need to talk to HP,
